GUARDING THE PRIEST

Father Yodyzsus Says Mass and

WATCHING FOR AN OUTBREAK

George Miller, the Leader of the An ti - Yodyzsus Faction, Received With Cheers -- Laughter in the Church During the Sermon-Katle Heide, the Suspended Priest's Housekeeper, Addresses the Crowd in the Street.

New York, Sept. 22.-Father Matthias de Yodyzsus, the notorious pastor of St. George's Lithuanian church, of North Tenth street, Williamsburg, celebrated mass Sunday morning in spite of public opinion and the mandates of Bishop Loughlin. A big and threaten-ing crowd surrounded his house and the church for some hours. Thanks to the police and the efforts of the conseryative element in his congregation, the shower of eggs with which he was to be greeted did not materialize.

The 7 a, m. mass at the church was omitted yesterday. Many people were on hand, in spite of the early hour. on hand, in spite of the early hour. Two officers from the Bedford avenue station-house, in addition to the one on the post, were stationed at the gates of the church and the priest's house opposite. About 10 o'clock Yodyzsus sent his young and pretty housekeeper, Katie Heide, to tell the policeman that the priest wished to sneak with him. the priest wished to speak with him. The officer was assured by Yodyzsus that the presence of the police was unthat the presence of the police was unnecessary.

"All this gossip about my being pelted with eggs and subjected to violence is newspaper talk," said the priest. "There isn't the slightest danger that I shall be hurt. Take your men away. My parishioners love me too much to harm me."

The policeman preferred to follow his instructions rather than the suggestions of the priest and remained on the spot.

As 11 a. m. drew near a crowd of sev-gestions of the priest and remained on the spot.

As 11 a. m. drew near a crowd of several hundred people gathered on the sidewalk near the church. There was a decidedly aggressive Polish element present. Finally Yodyzsus made his appearance. He wore a long black cassock and the beretta. In his hand he had a large prayer book. His face still bears the traces of the clubbing he received from Offleer Church.

With a defiant smile he glanced over the spectators. Something like a growl broke frem the crowd. Yodyzsus smiled, and with slow steps walked over to the church. Close belind him, swinging his long night stick, was an officer. The crowd laughed, made a few jocular remarks, shouted a bit, and the priest disappeared inside the church.

There was a rush to the doors by those, who were anxious to participate in the services. The priest had determined to reap at least some financial benefit from his notoriety. As a rule the gospel as preached at St. Georgu's is without money and without price. A fee of 10 cents was exacted yesterday, however, from each would-be worshiper.

monoy and without price. A let of 10 cents was exacted yesterday, however, from each would-be worshiper.

When Yodyssus began the services there were in the building by actual count 138 persons. Only about a fourth of these were the regular attendants at

of these were the vegan the mass he was as cool and collected as if trouble and scandal were unknown to him. He said that trouble and misfortune were said that trouble and misfortune were ever the lot of the godly. At this some of the irreverent one at the rear of the church tittered. "Christ," went on Yodyssus, "was a mark for the evilminded and the doers of evil deeds." Yodyssus then proceeded to draw a parallel between the Apostles and himself. He said thathis troubles arose entirely from this law of the Christian life. He was a priest—a servant of God.

life. He was a priest—a servant of God.
Therefore the servants of the devil looked upon him as their natural prey. All this newspaper talk, all these scandalous stories, all of his troubles were due to this fact. He was persecuted for righteousness sake.

to this fact. He was persecuted for righteousness sake.

Again the people at the back of the church tittered. Yodyza's stopped, looked sternly at them. and ordered the collection-plate passed. This effectually stopped the laughter. But the financial results were terribly scauty.

At the close of the services proper Yodyzaus addressed the congregation from the altar. He advised his listeners not to take any heed of what they might read in the newspapers. He declared that he had never received any notice of suspension from Bishop Loughlin, and that he intended to remain in the church as long as he had breath.

In the meantime the crowd around the church thickened. From Bedford avenue all along for a block below the clurch the sidewalks and the stoops were black with people. At the rear and sides of the church are tenement houses. The windows and fire secapes church the sidewalks and the stoops were black with people. At the rear and sides of the church are tenement houses. The windows and fire escapes of those were filled with spectators awaiting the threatened trouble.

George Miller, leader of the anti-Yodyzsus faction, now put in an appearance. Mr. Miller had had a hint from the police that if he tried to make trouble he would be dealt with in a summary fashion. Miller behaved quietly and planted himself against wall. At this juncture Mrs. Miller made her appearance. She is a plump and pretty little woman with a voluble tongue and a wealth of gestures. She was afraid her hubby would forget himself and get hurt, and she pleaded with him to go home. He refused to do so. Then she lost her temper and with much vigor told her husband he was an idlot. The crowd cheered. The worshippers began to file out of the church at this point, and the crowd set up another cheer.

"Now for the eggs!" yelled somebody. A burst of laughter followed the remark. The police took up positions at the church gates. A pause and then the portly form of Yodyzsus appeared. He stopped a moment to speak to one of the officers. Then he walked slowly across the road, with a policeman at his heels. His progress was marked by a few uncomplimentary remarks, but no violence was attempted. On reaching the door of his house Yodyzsus turned round and his smile changed to a grin of triumph as he eyed the crowd. Then he disappeared in the house.

In a few moments the pretty house-keeper made her appearance.

"I want to tell you all," she said, addressing the crowd, "that the father isn't afraid of any one or all of you," and with this she tripped away.

Katie is twenty-two years of age and has a remarkably handsome face and form. She is a German Pretestant. Since Bishop Loughlin has suspended Yodyzsus, the latter has been unable to get a Catholic housekeeper. Hence Katie's installation.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27. — The silmultaneous announcement on the New York Stock Exchange and the Chicago Board of Trade of the falling of the long established, well known and wealthy commission firm of S. V. White & Co., with its branch house in Chicago, at the opening of histoness this morning overshadowed all other items of news and caused instant demoralization in all the trading pits, including grains and hog products. The panie was short lived, and after a partial recovery the markets became comparatively steady, though generally at a lower rate than of yesterday, the pits assumed their normal appearance. Wheat was nervous on receipt of a cuble saying that the Berlin market was domoralized and 4 cents lower, broke to 59c for December, rallied to 595c, broke again to 59c, and closed easy at that price.
